The Great Sapha Dhammakaya Hall

The Dhammakaya Assembly Hall is located just opposite to the Dhammakaya Cetiya. It was designed to be a multi-functional, two-storied building suitable for meditation, Dhamma lectures, religious activities, youth development training, and meeting venue for monks. The upper level was designed to accommodate 150,000 with the lower level used for parking. Once the number of attendants exceeds 150,000, the lower level can be converted to a gathering place for another 150,000 people.

Parking is then moved to the surrounding open space.

The Dining Hall of Khun Yay Archaraya Chandra Khonnokyoong

Named after the founder of the Dhammakaya Temple, the Dining Hall of Khun Yay can seat up to 6,000 monks.

Everyday, lay people come to enjoy offering food and refreshments to more than 1,200 monks and novices who reside at this temple.

The spacious dining hall is frequently used to welcome visiting monks and novices. It also serves as a meeting venue for monks to chant together and/or hold a meeting as well as a place for lay people to make their offerings of food and other necessities appropriate for clergies such as saffron robes, medicine, toiletries, blankets, lotuses & garlands and so on.

The Dhammakaya Chapel
was awarded with an ASA's Architectural Design Awards in 1998.
